

Adding Your Billing Information

To avoid accounting complexities, we require that our customers pay for their ad spend to Google directly.

As part of our setup process, your marketing consultant will add the billing email you specify to the Google Ads account which will enable you to login and add your payment details to the account. This information is not visible to us.

We will operate within the budgets agreed by you at the start of the campaign. This is calculated on a daily basis by Google, essentially as your budget / 30.3 = daily budget. The daily budget can overspend by up to 50%, but the month as a whole will not go over your total budget.

When you have been added as a billing user, you'll receive an email like this:

A screenshot of a Google Ads invitation email. The email header features the Google Ads logo. The main heading reads "You have a pending invitation to access a Google Ads account". Below this, it states that a user has invited you to access the account. The account details listed are: Google Ads Account Name, Google Ads Customer ID, and Access Level: Billing. A note explains that the access level determines what features you can view or edit. A blue button labeled "ACCEPT INVITATION" is provided. At the bottom, there is a link to "decline the invitation" if you do not want to access the account.

Once you've done this, let your consultant know and they'll be able to keep an eye out for the account being confirmed so that we can start serving ads.
